CONGRESSMAN BURNS TO DEATH

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 23, 1909—Representative David A. Dearmond, one of the oldest Democratic members of Congress, and grandson Waddie, aged six, gurned to death in a fire that destroyed the Dearmond home in Butler, Mo.

WASHING DISHES.

Only One Time in a Woman's Life When She Enjoys It.

We never knew but one woman who professed that she liked to wash dishes, and from that moment our faith in her veracity melted like soap in hot dishwater.

The only time we wish we were a man is after a hearty dinner, when he can enjoy a siesta or discuss the papers, while we must attend to the inevitable dishes.

Can any one wonder that girls get tired of the monotonous round of dishwashing, which must be done three times a day for the 365 consecutive days?

Think of it, ye gods, and tear your hair and weep for the woes of our sisterhood!

There is a short time in most every woman's life when it is a pleasure, but that is when we are too small to reach upon the kitchen table without a chair and are permitted to wash the cups and saucers to keep us out of mischief. When we are older and have it to do alone the soup tureen would not hold the tears we shed over it.

How we have dreamed over the blue pictures on the old fashioned dishes—pictures of impossible temples and castles, built in unhealthy proximity to "clear lakes," and in girlish fancy wandered to unheard of lands to dwell in those "castles in the air."

There should be no dishwashing there.

But hark! The shrill voice of our mother rings out clear and sharp:

"Matilda, what are you doing?" with rising inflection on the last syllable of our name.

All the house knows that "Till" is dreaming over the dishpan again, and reverie is not permitted in our active household, which was conducted on the "whoop her up" system.

When we see ladies going mad over ceramics we wonder if they served their apprenticeship polishing tablefuls of china.—New York Weekly.

Different Caddies.

Some New Yorkers wanted to go around the links at Manchester, Vt., says the Saturday Evening Post. They could find no caddies.

Presently two boys came in with some players.

"Caddies," said the New Yorkers, "come on and go around with us."

"Nope," said one of the boys. "We done enough today."

"Come on and take our bags."

"No. We've done enough today."

"Why, caddies down in New York where we live are always glad to earn some extra money by going around as many times as they can."

"Yes," replied one of the Vermont boys, "but I callate them caddies down there is all paupers."

"The Early Bird"

Manager—I suppose you noticed that my advertisement read, "None but a sober man need apply for this position."

Applicant—Yes, I noticed that, and that's why I applied very early in the morning.—Judge.

PUZZLE OF THE AIR.

Changing Currents Shown by the Action of Birds in Flight.

The average person regards air much as he regards water—as much lighter, of course, but like it otherwise. Calm air is precisely to him as calm water in a pool. If there is a wind he pictures the air as a flowing river. And just so long as all men looked at it so, just so long the birds kept their monopoly, for the only state in which water approaches the condition of air is when water forms a maelstrom. Even then water in its wildest turbulence falls far short of the unstable, incessant agitation of the atmosphere. Air is never still. It is filled with warm waves ascending, cold waves descending, and through it race cross shoots and diagonal shoots, with corkscrew whirlwinds wandering hither and yon as they list. The warm air off a cornfield creates one kind of a disturbance; off plowed land it creates another. A layer of cold air may hold down a layer of warmer air. Consider what happens when the warm air breaks through its envelope as a millpond bursts its dam. A flowing stream churned to and fro and round and round and up and down would give a feeble idea of the air's inconstancy.

Now, a bird, circling with fixed wings, floats on a rising column of air. It maintains its altitude as to the earth, but it is constantly coasting down through the air's ascending volume. Once the bird loses the air column it has to flap its wings, and it flaps till it finds another column, when it goes on wheeling again with fixed wings. Moreover, when it flies the wind comes toward it in waves, rising and falling like the billows of the sea. It meets them, and then it does precisely what a boat does—goes over them or goes through them. The Wrights learned all this, and when they'd learned they were about as near to flying as you and I would be to writing Chinese philosophy when we'd just learned the English alphabet. Furthermore, there were no teachers, living or dead, that could help them more than a few steps along the way.—Everybody's Magazine.

FOUGHT WITH HIS BOYS.

An Amusing Passage Between Willich and Rosecrans.

There are times when the so called "red tape" of the army gives way under the stress of circumstances. At the battle of Chickamauga, General Willich, who was commanding a brigade, incurred the displeasure of General Rosecrans, the commanding general, by some very slight omission. General Willich was sent for and informed by the general commanding that he must consider himself under arrest for the present.

"General," said Rosecrans sternly, "consider yourself under arrest and leave your sword here until your case is tried."

"Yes, general, I will consider myself under arrest," was the reply, "and shut so soon as dis fight's over I'll come and fix him up."

"But, sir," said the astounded Rosecrans, "I want you to consider yourself under arrest now."

"Of course I do," responded Willich promptly, "and so soon as I get off dis fight I'll be up and settle him."

"But, sir," expostulated the commanding general, "I can't let you go into this fight. You are under arrest. I will send an officer to your brigade."

"You send an officer to fight my boys?" cried Willich indignantly. "He can't do it. They don't know him. Me they know. I teach them. I fight them, and none of the boys would know how to fight or what to do only when I go with them. My boys belong to me; yes, me, General Willich. I command the brigade, and I must fight the brigade."

General Rosecrans gave it up. General Willich was requested to return and "fight his boys," which he did most successfully. And that was the end of the matter.—Youth's Companion.

They Don't Like Rain.

The tortoise shows a greater dislike to and fear of rain than any other animal. Twenty-four hours or more before rain falls the Galapagos tortoise makes for shelter. On a bright, clear morning, when not a cloud can be seen, all the shellbacks on a tortoise farm may sometimes be seen headed for the nearest overhanging rocks. When that happens the people know that rain will come down during the day, and, as a rule, it comes down in torrents. The sign never fails.

Told the Truth.

"Why are you sore at Miss Skreacher?" "When she was urged to sing something at the party last night she said, 'Oh, I can't sing!'" "Well?" "Well, she went ahead and proved it."—Cleveland Leader.

HORRORS OF THE ARCTIC.

Terrible Experience of the Crew of the Ill Fated Jeannette.

When Ross in 1818 touched at Etah the Eskis thought they were being visited by ghosts. With her white sails appearing on the horizon, where the sky melts into an abyss of ocean, what else could the ship be but some great white winged ghost, and what those strange creatures on her decks but lost souls? They thought she, a great bird, had flown from the moon, where wood was abundant, and when they saw her close, her wooden belly and her masts, they whispered, "How much wood there is in the moon—how very much!" Wood is like gold to the Eskis.

One of the unhappy crew of the Jeannette writes: "I put some mercury to freeze and beat it out on the anvil. Our frozen brandy looked like black topaz. We divided meat, oil and bread with a hatchet. Joshua forgot to put on his right glove; in a moment his hand was frozen. The poor devil wished to thaw his lifeless hand in warm water. It was immediately covered with pieces of ice. The doctor was forced to cut the unlucky mate's hand off, and he died next day. Toward the middle of January a caravan of Eskis came to ask us for some dried fish and brandy. We added a little tobacco to these presents, which they received with tears of joy. The chief, a feeble old man, told us that the week before he had eaten his wife and two sons."

Cold more terrible than the white wolf and bear seizes its victims unawares, instantaneously, fatally. The cold purifies the blood, sharpens appetite, favors digestion and stomach. It soothes to sleep by bringing death in the midst of beautiful dreams. This intense cold, so dry, so pure, stops putrefaction, sweetens the air by greatly increasing its density and purifies water. Cold takes the place of cooking, for it makes raw meat, raw fish and tallow eatable.

A Roman nosed people could not hold their own in the arctic. A Roman nose would be too often frozen off. The Esk flat nose is less exposed. The name Eskimo, or raw food eaters, is a nickname given by the Labrador Indians. Their true name in their own tongue is Inuit and means "man." If patriotism be a virtue the Eskis have it surpassingly. Never was a land of verdant groves, golden harvests and willows mirrored in the streamlets and silvery waves better beloved than their snow fields and ice hills and gloomy, stinking tents and igloos.—New York Press.

THE CENTURY PLANT.

It Blooms, Says a Florist, Every Twenty-five to Forty Years.

"The regular century plant," said an expert in floriculture, "is not a cactus. It belongs to a family by itself. It has a large, broad leaf, sometimes two or three feet long and several inches thick where they branch from the center. There are two varieties, one the variegated and the other green. The only difference is that the variegated has a white stripe along the outer edge of the leaf. Both bloom every twenty-five to forty years. A stock perhaps eight or ten inches in diameter shoots up from the center to a height of fifteen or twenty feet, and around this stock cluster small blossoms. They are neither pretty nor fragrant. They were formerly supposed to bloom once in a hundred years."

"The nearest thing to a century plant is a night blooming cereus. It is a cactus and blooms once in about every twenty-five years or so. The flower is large, very beautiful and has a delightful odor. One plant may have several blossoms, but each flower lasts only one night."

"There is no such plant as a 'century cactus.' The cactuses that many have mistaken for 'century cactuses' will bloom in four or five years if kept under glass or about seven years if not in a hothouse. Because they are so long in blooming, I suppose, they have been called 'century cactuses,' and the name has been handed down until it is considered the proper term for them. They bloom yearly after the first blossoms appear. They are just an ordinary cactus, but they have a pretty, fragrant flower."—Seattle Times.

The Canny Scot.

In the differences that would sometimes arise between members of his tenantry the Duke of Argyll was often invited to arbitrate upon the matter in dispute, and he used to tell a characteristically Scottish story of one of the occasions. Two tenants having waited upon him and asked him to decide the question at issue, the duke put what he always regarded as a very necessary preliminary question, "Will you abide by my award?"

"Well, your grace," was the reply of one of the hard headed old disputants. "I'd like to ken first what it is."—London Chronicle.

Not to Blame.

"Do you mean to say it is through no fault of yours that you appear before me again?" demanded the judge of the hard faced culprit.

"Yes, I do," replied the latter. "I did my level best to defeat you the last time you ran."

"MICHAEL'S"

No Port in a Storm.

The most dangerous of all places when a thunderstorm rages is probably a powder house; consequently it is a rule in explosive works that all the workers shall leave their "house" at the approach of a thunderstorm. So far all is well. But very often when the thunderstorm has passed and the men return and open the cake presses severe explosions have occurred. The reason of these accidents is that in the process of manufacture black powder is placed in the cake presses in alternate layers of powder and ebonite. This acts as an electric pile, just like the pile of coppers and disks of zinc with which boys amuse themselves. When the pile is disturbed the electricity "sparks," and up go building, workers and all.—London Answers.

How a Moose Eats.

Of all peculiar sights I think that that of a moose eating grass is the most extraordinary. The neck is so short and the legs are so long that the animal usually kneels in eating grass. True, it does not attempt it very often, for grass is by no means a staple with it, but even a moose likes a change of diet. The appearance of this huge and awkward creature in this devotional attitude is not only interesting, but laughable.—St. Nicholas.

A Use For the Jail.

Winkleborough is a flourishing little seaside resort, and during the season almost every available room is let at good prices.

A visitor to that delightful spot last season was interested to observe a policeman soundly cuff a lanky youth for some misdemeanor, and, curious to know the reason of the chastisement, he went over to the guardian of the peace.

"What's he done, constable?" inquired the visitor.

"Pickin' pockets, sir. Let me catch 'im at it ag'in an' I'll give 'im a rare good hidin'."

"But why didn't you run him in?"

"Run 'im in?" retorted the policeman. "Why, bless yer, we ain't runnin' anybody in this week. The p'lice station's let for lodgin's!"—London Answers.

Glazed Eyes.

Snakes may almost be said to have glass eyes, inasmuch as their eyes never close. They are without lids, and each is covered with a transparent scale much resembling glass. When the reptile casts its outer skin the eye scales come off with the rest of the transparent envelope out of which the snake slips.

This glassy eye scale is so tough that it effectually protects the true eye from the twigs, sharp grass and other obstructions which the snake encounters in its travels, yet it is transparent enough to allow the most perfect vision. Thus if the snake has not a glass eye it may, at any rate, be said to wear eyeglasses.

His Affliction.

One day the teacher of the juvenile class spoke of the poet Milton's blindness. On the following day she asked a small boy if he remembered how Milton was afflicted.

"Yes, ma'am," answered the little fellow. "He was a poet."—Exchange.

A DREAM CAT.

Repeated Appearance Premonitory of Disease.

"Some years ago, early in the summer," says H. Addington Bruce in Success Magazine, "I dreamed that while out taking a walk I was suddenly attacked by a huge cat, which clawed ferociously at my throat. That was all there was to the dream, or, at any rate, that was all I remembered on awakening in the morning, and, naturally enough, I dismissed it from my mind as nothing but a dream."

"But when I dream myself dreaming the same dream again and again I began to wonder what significance it would possibly have. Usually it varied greatly in minor detail. Always, however, the climax was the same—the cat had me by the throat and was biting and scratching viciously. Altogether I dreamed this dream not less than a score of times in six months."

"Shortly before Christmas I took a cold, which settled in my throat, affecting it so badly as to require the attention of a specialist. Much to my astonishment, it was then discovered that a growth had been developing for some time and that an immediate operation was necessary."

"Several weeks later, the operation having been performed successfully, it suddenly occurred to me that I was no longer being troubled by the phantom cat. For the first time the meaning of the singular dream dawned upon me."

"It had been a genuine premonitory dream. Consciously I had been in utter ignorance of the dangerous growth in my throat. It had not progressed far enough to give me any pain or even to cause discomfort. At the same time the organic changes it involved had produced sensations plainly felt by what psychologists call the subconscious and manifesting through the subconscious to the conscious in the form of a symbolic dream."

Polar Etiquette.

We did not hesitate to take advantage of the cache made by Abruzzi on Cape Flora, knowing that the duke was safe in warmer climes, for it is polar etiquette that the first hungry party that finds a cache is at liberty to take the supplies. Such action has always been regarded as perfectly lawful and proper, because the food is taken to sustain life, and, as in our own case, they are ready to make good if they ever get out alive. In addition to the canned meats left by the Abruzzi expedition, there were some which an English party had cached.—Captain Edwin Coffin's Story of the Ziegler Polar Expedition in National Magazine.

Russell Cass had a narrow escape from injury in a runaway last night. One of the fastenings holding the thills to the buggy broke as he was driving to his father's home near Baxter, and the horse became unmanageable. Russell jumped from the rig and escaped injury. The horse got loose from the buggy and was found in a hole beside the railroad track, having jumped the track with the thills attached to it. It was thought at first that the horse had broken one leg but fortunately this proved not to be the case. The horse had one shoulder badly bruised, however.

George Trent of Brainerd, the traveling representative for the Remington and U. M. C. Arms company, came up to the city last night from his home at Brainerd. He was accompanied by Henry Spaulding, ex-sheriff of Crow Win county, and W. H. Cleary, the wholesale grocer who is heavily interested in the Northern Grocery company of this city. The party intended joining A. H. Jester and F. S. Lycan here for a hunt. It is stated that Mr. Cleary has already killed two deer and a moose and has been supplying local friends with meat today, exhibiting great generosity even for so liberal a man as Mr. Cleary is known to be.—Bemidji Pioneer.

R. H. MURFORD TELLS OF EARLY DAYS

Deerwood Man Was General Agent for Northern Pacific and Superintended Building

WAS CHIEF IN CHARGE OF WORK

Spoke Interestingly to Dispatch Reporter Concerning Connection With Railroad

Robert H. Morford, of Deerwood, was a Brainerd visitor Monday, and while here grew reminiscent regarding the early days of the Northern Pacific railroad. Mr. Morford was the general agent of the Northern Pacific when it was under construction through Minnesota. He was the direct personal representative in the west of Gov. Davis, of Vt., who was president of the company which built the road and had entire charge of the work of construction, receiving the first material at Duluth and looking after every detail of the construction of the road. Mr. Morford stated in Brainerd that the road was constructed through Crow Wing county, as far as Brainerd 39 years ago this winter. He continued with the company in charge of construction until 1880, losing his health bucking snow drifts between Mandan and the Yellowstone that winter, and after resigning from the service of the company he returned to Deerwood, where he established his home and where he has resided for the past 30 years.

Mr. Morford was in the employ of the company before coming west, and made the charter for the carrying of steel around the horn for the commencement of the road at the west end, as was at first projected. This scheme was abandoned, however, because of the panic of 1873, and it was not until ten years later that the road was finally completed.

Cuyler Adams, the father of the Cuyuna iron range, is a son-in-law of Mr. Morford, and it was through the connection of Mr. Morford with the Northern Pacific that Mr. Adams first became interested in this section of the country.

CUTS A PARK FROM CITY

Superior Objects to Proposed Soo
Extension in a Residence
District

Superior, Wis., Nov. 22—The Soo railroad has been surveying a line through the western section of the city leading to property on St. Louis bay where it is proposed to build docks for ore from the Cuyuna range in Minnesota. The proposed lines goes through a residence portion of the city and cuts the city off from Billings park, a beauty spot on the St. Louis.

When the survey was started protests went up, it being desired to compel the road to run its line a little further east and parallel the Great Northern until the residence section was passed. The Soo's objection to this is that it would have to cross a strip of land held by the Great Northern for future use for shops, and this would, it is feared, entail a strenuous legal battle.

The Soo now announces that it will not build a grade road there, but an elevated one. It is likely an effort will be made to get the rate commission to compel the roads to bunch as much as possible in all future operations in the city.

Woman's Label League Meeting

The Woman's International Union Label League No. 250 held a rousing meeting in their rooms last evening at Baker's hall. Dr. Mary Powers, of Minneapolis, a member of W. I. U. L. No. 240 gave a splendid talk on the object of the league and suggested practical lines of work for the league to adopt. A few of the suggestions being to show interest in the laboring men's families, whether they are union or not, that a league card be adopted. Dr. Powers spoke of the elimination of child labor from stores and factories in an able manner, giving facts that would be well for every man and woman in Brainerd to have knowledge of. She said the ruin of many young girls in large cities begins with early temptation in large stores and factories. The Minnesota Woman's International Union Label League is growing at a rapid pace and the Brainerd league is not behind those of other cities. Although only a few months old it has a good membership of enthusiastic workers and is initiating new members every meeting. A good winters work was outlined by the league last night.

Granite and Lime.

Granite is the lowest rock in the earth's crust. It is the bedrock of the world and shows no evidence of animal or vegetable life. It is the parent rock from which all the other rocks have been either directly or indirectly derived. It is claimed by scientists that all the lime in the world has at some time no doubt been a portion of many different animals and possibly of human beings also.

GATHERED HERE AND THERE

The Wagon Enterprise and the Onamia Lake Breeze are agitating the question of the citizens of that part of the country which is being opened by the Soo's Brocton cut, off, voting heavy bonds to build roads, and thus make the speculators who are holding land help pay for the development of the country, by which they will benefit.

Wm. Wolford, of Mora, Kennebec county, killed a white deer last week while hunting in the Ann Lake country. He will have it mounted.

Anton Wall, of Carberry, N. D., wants the address of Joan Hanson, who went from there to Blackduck seven years ago and worked two years in the woods but has not been heard of since.

All the granite shops in St. Cloud, and several other establishments have been compelled to shut down for lack of power caused by anchor ice at the power station.

Deer are reported to be very plentiful in the neighborhood of Platte Lake, according to reports of hunters coming into Little Falls.

The Great Northern Flyer has for 33 days maintained a 48 hour schedule between St. Paul and Seattle. Officials state that it is the fastest mail train in the world at present.

A Sauk Rapids man has or rather had, a dog which deliberately committed suicide because she had been tied up so that she could not join her "affinity." Is this another indication of the evolution of man from the lower animals?

The estate of Sigvart Kittlesby, a former resident of Norman county is being probated under peculiar circumstances. Kittlesby went insane and was committed to the Fergus Falls Asylum. He escaped from there over seven years ago, and has not been heard from since. Relatives in Norway have now asked that his estate be probated.

Football advocates point out the statement that there were more lives lost in base ball last year than in football as evidence that the latter is the more dangerous. They ignore the fact, however, that the base ball season is several months longer than the foot ball season and that there are many times the number of persons play the game. Were it possible to make a statement of comparative percentage of injuries it might be of value.

The Cass County Pioneer says that there is little use in talking to the farmer about patronizing home industries when he has to sell his cattle for two cents a pound and pay the local butcher from ten cents upward for meat. The paper also urges upon the business men the necessity of patronizing each other and the home farmers.

According to an item going the rounds of the country press it will be unlawful after the first of January next for any person to "pay out any note, check, memorandum, token or other obligation for less sum than $1 intended to circulate as or to be received in lieu of lawful money of the United States." The penalty for violation is said to be a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment not more than six months, or both. Some claim that the bill was secured by the bankers to cut out small checks as they dislike handling them. Another view is that the act is aimed at the metal checks and tokens so often issued by merchants instead of due bills. It would, if the latter view is correct, probably also prohibit the "good in trade" checks turned out by the slot machines.

A school district in which all the residents are Indians has been organized in Mahanomen county. All the pupils will be Chippewa or half-breed children. The school is said to need a teacher very badly but can only pay $50 per month.

R. J. Bennington, of LaPorte, thought he would play a smart trick on a St. Paul liquor dealer, but it proved an expensive one. Bennington, who is a saloon keeper, filled an empty whiskey barrel with water and shipped it back to the man he bought the whiskey from, saying that his customers did not like anything as thin as this. The wholesaler did not appreciate the joke and as the revenue stamp had not been destroyed on the barrel had Bennington arrested and he was convicted at Fergus Falls last week of violation of the United States revenue laws.

Judge's Charge is Far Reaching

According to reports brought back from Fergus Falls regarding the trial of Fred Anderson, the former Callaway saloonkeeper, indicted for introducing liquor into the "Indian country" which was made prohibitive territory by the treaty of 1855, the charge of Federal Judge Charles E. Amidon to the jury which found Anderson guilty, was one of the most far-reaching ever delivered in the state. Apparently Judge Amidon did not take into consideration the fact that Anderson had actually sold liquor within the confines of the present White Earth reservation, but rather that he had received shipments at Detroit and this constituted a violation of the treaty which forbade any and all persons from "introducing spirituous liquors within the boundary lines of the ceded territory covered by the treaty." The jury, acting under Judge Amidon's instructions, had no alternative but to find Anderson guilty as we are told that he practically plead guilty to receiving shipments at Detroit. The case will be taken to the United States supreme court on a direct appeal, this being provided for where treaty rights are involved, and if Judge Amidon's contention as to the interpretation of the treaty provisions is upheld, every saloonkeeper in Detroit and other places in the state north of St. Paul and Minneapolis will be equally guilty as this is all ceded territory and covered by the treaty under which Anderson was tried. The importance of this cannot be over-estimated and a battle royal will be put on in defense of the liquor interests who realize that if the supreme court rules against them in this case it will give the temperance forces a weapon that will ultimately result in wiping out the traffic in this state. The case will be hurried to the supreme court and a decision is expected within the next twelve months. Of the eight men who were summoned to Fergus Falls on the same charge as Anderson, he was the only one tried, it being agreed between the attorneys that a test case should be made and the others continued with the defendants held under suitable bonds. The fact that the case is to be taken up to the highest court in the land and a definite ruling secured will be welcomed by residents of this city and county for under the present status of affairs concerning the rights of the Indian and white men, there is a cloud of uncertainty that more or less retards the development of the country and the removal of this will be beneficial to all concerned. If the supreme court decides that the treaty provisions are binding it means that the saloons of Detroit and other towns, especially those adjoining the Indian reservations, will be wiped out of existence. If the ruling is adverse to the treaty it means that the once noble red men will be fed upon intoxicants in such unlimited quantities as will forever destroy his degeneration as fast as possible. The decision will be eagerly awaited by the people of Northern Minnesota.—Detroit Record.

If Occident Flour Is Not Better Than Any You Ever Used—Your Money Will Be Refunded

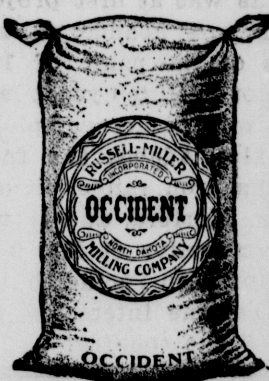

YOU never read a fairer offer—nor a broader guarantee—did you? There is only one way for you to know how and why Occident will please you best—use it. We are willing to take the risk—we know the flour.

OCCIDENT FLOUR

Go to your grocer and get a sack of Occident. If when you use it you are not convinced that Occident is the most satisfactory flour you ever baked with—both in working up and in results—if you don't like it better than every other kind,—go back to your grocer and tell him so; he is authorized to refund, without argument, the full purchase price of any package of Occident which you do not find satisfactory.

Occident Flour costs you a few cents more than ordinary flour. It costs us more. And the difference shows in your baking. The few cents more enable the millers to raise the standard of Occident Flour to "highest grade in the World"—from wheat to package. Use one sack at our risk.
